

No	Name	Observation
1	Shraddha Chandrasekharan	The logo has letter 'ka' in Sanskrit which is the first letter of the word katham. As katham.in is an inward journey, of seeking the infinity that leads to nothingness. Similarly, the symbol in logo has infinity symbol blended within letter 'ka' inside a circle implying zero(nothingness). This is my own naive interpretation sir. I watched your video which provoked me to get into the inward journey.
2	Akshay Kanoria	Hello Sir, I am extremely excited to see the Katham initiative. I saw first video yesterday. For challenge posted, I feel it's word khatam written in logo.. for example, 'k' in hindi in center of logo...
3	Dinesh Babu	Sir, my quick answer - believe this is the Sanskrit Ka, the devanagari script, representing katham and to emphasize the inner nature it's encircled. As a overkill on the observation, the un-joint end of the RHS ellipse is curved inward compared to the actual Ka. It also looks like a person smiling - head with split, eyes, nose and a big smiling wide mouth or a big moustache.
4	Ananthapadmanabhan	Namaste Dinesh ji. My interpretations (guided by what has been inculcated in me through the traditional teachings) 1. "Ka" Bheejam - Refers to The Creator (Brahma/ Supreme Personality depending on the Sampradaya one belongs to), Aathma etc. 2. From 0 to Infinity through Jnana / Bhakthi/ Karma (0 is the circle, infinity the Ka, the centre line signifying the ascension) 3. There are other interpretations such as Katham in Sanskrit is How. Namaste.
5	Asha Raghavan	ok..ok. i just saw ur web page...designed widbd help of adinetra? katham in sanskrit/ hindi represents d for dinesh & k for kumar joined to form hindi ka? who did it for u? for now...nascent thots(not for the sake of competition)..(nor hv i discussed with anyone..) 1. a lady's face, dk..which r 2 eyes and a thilakam (a vertical line tht joins dk...may I call her lakshmi(daya..wuth her anugraham) OR shakthi .. her giving invisible indefatigable energy to pursue this sadana perenially and uninterrupted. dk (please read it as the logo)...dk (is The creator..dinesh kumar) & the empty space around it is actuators who are the team of logo makers, the readers who give inputs, people at home. 4. dk. the lens through which we see/ imagine, soak in, drink in & shoot at u faqs!!!. The demystification: 1. A lady's face as seen in 'ka' (in hindi/sanskrit) which are the two eyes, a 'tilakam,' a vertical line which joins 'ka'. This lady is Lakshmi, the Goddess with her overpowering eyes spilling 'daya' & 'anugraham' OR This lady is Shakti flooding cavernous energy to pursue the 'saadhana' uninterrupted. 2. the devnagri 'ka' is dk as in dinesh kumar (the creator) & the empty spaces are the actuators: a. the team which created the logo, b. the readers who gave the inputs, c. the family members 3. 'ka' is a pair of lens through which the readers imagine, drink in, soak in & shoot FAQs.
6	Sashi Kumar Nair	Namaste Guruji. The logo means to me as 1. ॐ 2. Stree / purusha (with nama) roopa 3. Universe. The circle is our universe. Line is divided into 2 parts: 1. The ocean of a knowledge and scriptures written by our Guru's 2. Our literacy to understand the scriptures is incomplete. Guruji, may be vague...but... We can also interpret it as death and birth cycle. Universe around dh (your name).
7	Dr. Rammohan	Here is my first interpretation after looking at that symbol. Also it gives me the confidence for most of the questions in Samskrita: Kriya, karthru, & answers all the questions kaha etc.. Kathaagre Vasate Lakshmi, Kathamadhye Sarasvati Kathamuule Tu Govindah Nirantharam Katham darshanam
8	V. Ranganathan	Namaskaram. I like the logo. All our speaches are starting or generating through khanta(throat) if I am wrong please correct me. I am learning a lot from your post. Regards.
9	Vivekananda Babar	This gives me impression of something like "Inquisitive" reminds me similarities with symbol of Vastu Purusha....
10	Jagadiswari Shanmugam:	A baby beteen the moon and earth meditating. Hindi letter ka for katham. Brain has left & right hemispheres to think of God. d dinesh h harur in the universe.
11	Ram Kumar Kaushik	Hello sir, it seems to me the KATHAM logo human face, eyes, nose, head with Tilak and looks like maa kaali face at first look. Another things English alphabet d, h, o, l, & number 1,8,0, symbol infinity & Hindi me ka word.

No	Name	Observation
12	Shashank Agrawal	The logo is indeed beautiful and carries a great depth. From my limited knowledge and wild imagination I can see multiple meanings and interpretations embedded in it which could be both intended or otherwise. Here are some of my own: 1). At the first look, it looks like a devi is meditating with her eyes closed and focused on Agya Chakra. 2). Top view taken from the throat (because the letter "Ka" is pronounced from the throat) with Sushumna at the center and Ida and pingala in either sides, both leaving very minimal space for the central nadi. 3). The three circles appearing in the picture with black around white might represent the darkness or ignorance revolving continuously and finally merging into supreme. 4). The two triangles represent that both left and right brains are getting activated as a result of deep meditation. 5). If the two lobes of ignorance represent man and woman, the path to the supreme at the top centre isn't through by shaking hands (since the right lobe of letter "Ka" is not complete) but through the sides messaging thereby that everyone has to cover their journey by oneself and alone. (I remember you had described this to me once during an event). 6). The creator always has his helping hand (umbrella at the center) and blessings on all of us equally while we are sailing through the black bhavasagar in the boat at the bottom center. Moreover, the Guru on the right is also holding the umbrella along with the creator for the shishya on the left, which beautifully conveys the message of Gururbrahma, Gururvishnu, Gururdevomaheshwarah and also guru govind dono khade, kake laage paanye, balihari guru aapne govind diyo bataye. The black vertical bar at the center also looks like an invisible divine bond between any two persons of the world. 7). Kid sleeping peacefully inside the most protective environment, ie the mother's womb, in a horizontal position with face down (towards left) and umbilical cord connected to both the mother in a visible (white) way and the Creator too in an invisible (black) way. 8). The white represents everythingness and black represents nothingness, Shiva, present simultaneously around and at the core too. 9). The letter "Ka" looks like Om also, tilted 90 degree acw.
13	Manan Gupta	I know this sounds really naive of me to interpret it like that but I believe the logo indicates the first letter of katham in hindi that is क. And the circle around it depicts the uniformity and indicates that it embraces all! And is not limited to certain class of people.! Thanks! P.s - my desperate try for the t-shirt
14	Sowjanya, a ninth grader:	I feel like it a hindi alphabet (ka) inside a circle. Or it could mean stay clam whatever happens as life is like a circle.
15	Ganesh S:	A person (vertical line) trapped inside the world of Maya (circle) tightened by chain of sorrows. By exploring the truth, he is trying to release the chain...
16	Srinivasan A. V.:	Outer Circle: Represent (0-shunya) represents 'Emptiness', which has a deep connection with Spirituality. Infinite Symbol: Soul or spirit exists for ever and hence the symbol infinity. It is an easy term to conceptualize God. Spirituality itself is 'Infinity'. Letter I inside the circle: Represents 'Self.' The gap between I & Infinite symbol: Get yourself 'Inside'. Words: Katham & Be Here Now: Come to Katham to feel thy 'Present'.
17	Dr. Dhananjay Tambe:	Needless to acknowledge how informative and insightful these posts are to me. About the logo: I see the logo as a graphical representation of legs crossed in padmasana and the spine in the middle. I read this graphic as a being engaged a meditative state (a state helping one experience the infinity) and a state that establishes a channel of enlightenment with the brain via the spine. In the graphic, the brain is not a small roundish object, but rather a circle which envelopes (reinforces) the process that helped it attain the enlightenment.
18	Krishan Kumar	This gives me impression of a face of a person / being trying to know katham of so many questions of this life by introspecting inwards.. middle क states Katham and क with circle around deciphers a face of person having wide eyes to have katham.in for all queries of life!
19	Rajesh:	In first glance, the logo looks like " Spiritual eyes through which you can see the world". Thanks for your efforts to make us understand this dimension of life"
20	Priya Vijayakumar	Logo demystification of Katham website..the logo is apt and mesmerizing. The first impression is a divine face staring at us with distinct eyes and half moon shaped lovely lower part of the face.One can't ignore the link of Nothingness (0) to Everythingness (∅) from eye to eye. Nevertheless the face of Kathakali hero with significant eye rolling movements also comes to the mind. The devanagri letter" ka" is very evident. The subtle dichotomy of mind(brain) is also note worthy of the logo.

No	Name	Observation
21	Dr. Vinyas Mahesh	First thing that strikes to my mind is, those who are trapped in their own world filled with various emotions, sorrows etc and feeling suffocated needs to just open a bit of inner eye to look into themselves. Then the true meaning of "infinity" in one's own life will be realised.
22	Jaikiran Easwaran	The outer ring implies O 'nothingness.' The infinity symbol implies 'everythingness.' The vertical line could be taken as unity. Everything & nothingness are one & the same. The ka script is more of a personal touch to the website the starting letter of 'Katham' This is what I inferred after reading through your daily posts. If I had missed anything please do elaborate.
23	Dr. Rajashree AN	WOW ... that's one fantastic Logo.. which has innumerable connotations ... at the outset I would like to demystify two thoughts abt the Logo. 1. The entire Logo consists of the Hindi alphabet used to write KATHAM .. "tha" being represented as it's mirror image 2. English alphabets "d" & "h" in a circle □, representing ur name !! 3. Which could also be derived as Half infinity symbol resonating much with your eigenmode 4. Grossly I see a face with closed eyescould be a depiction of your meditative mode towards inner journey. I am waiting for my T-Shirt or anything similar. ☺□☺□
24	Kunal Bavikar	I thought on the logo & this is what I feel. - First the background black & white combination shows the combination of good & evil that exists with in everyone & it goes hand in hand. It is like without dark there will not a light and vice versa - Second the infinity symbol with a small opening show their is a way to moksha -And overall it shows like a person who is looking to us, this shows that if you look carefully in this world you will get the answer. Overall the logo is a combination of peace symbol with a message of mokha and answers from the infinity question. That is what I feel sir . It may be completely wrong as well. Thank you sir! It will be my pleasure. I would definitely like to know what it exactly means from the perspective of the creator!
25	Dr. Prapanch Nair	In addition to the obvious reveal of the devanagiri "ka" in the logo, I see three things superimposed. 1) Me: Me, you or the brahman, indicated by a pair of eyes meditating with focus along their pituitary gland, where the tilak is or the Namam is, centered between the two eyes. 2) Here: The symbol infinity, cut by the central vertical line. Infinity, indicating the expanse of this universe, the vertical line indicating the position where I (refer point 1) am located at all times, who is always at the mid point of his experience of the infinite. 3) Now: I see a clock indicating the twelve o clock, suggestive of a zero offset from the now, with access, of course to the past and future, but only allowed by the I in point 1. I therefore see the theme of your website in the logo, this way. Additionally, I see an agglomeration of two scripts, the ka from devanagiri and the o indicating the sound 'am' from a Dravidian script, perhaps to dispel any myths around a split history of our origins. I am perhaps stretching too far on this last point, but my curiosity takes me there. I hope you are doing well, and it was a pleasant surprise to stumble upon your project and experience your spiritual lecture first, before I got a chance to listen to one of your technical lectures. I have only learned of them through Sathis. PS: I tried a few ways to get the response to you. Perhaps emailing you was not intended. But I only have 24 hours, so I better push.
26	Vignesh Mahalingam	1. The Devanāgarī क and Vatteḷḷettu ക 2. An alien face with no mouth from the black portion, a smiling person from the white portion 3. The tending to infinity→ ∞ symbol 4. The life cycle that ends in Mōkśa 5. The choking Malacca strait portion of the string of pearls 6. The bipolar 21st century denoted by just two contrasting colours-black & white. 7. The recursive nature of politics in human behaviour.
27	Rajnish Mallick	Sir, one think which immediately strikes the mind is, your insignia as a reflection of name initials: dh; in a formatted style which also comply with the eternal energy, 1. which also symbolizes a key as it opens door to knowledge. 2. It is close yet open to receive and disseminate the best to justify our existence.